DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 4/12/2006 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Sato et al (5,527,649 or 5,718, 992).

Sato et al disclose a substrate having coated thereon, a light-shielding layer. The layer comprises dyes, pigments, and preferably electrically-conductive fine particles including carbon black, metal oxides (tin oxide, ITO, titanium oxide), and metals (gold, platinum, palladium, silver alloys, copper, and/or nickel). Since the reference teaches that at least one of carbon black, metal oxides and metals are chosen, and lists gold, nickel, silver, and copper which are all instantly claimed are listed as preferred metals, one of ordinary skill in the art would have immediately envisaged preparing the layer and choosing a metal as the particle. The layer is coated on a transparent electrically- conductive underlayer. The dry thickness of the layer is preferable 0.3 to 5 microns. With respect to the optical density and ratio density limitations, it is the position of the examiner that given the similarity of the materials, the material of the references would inherently possess these properties. Given the teachings of the references, the instant claims 1-19 are anticipated by the references.

Alternatively, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare the material of Sato et al choosing to prepare the material having gold, silver, copper, or nickel fine particles, with reasonable expectation of achieving a material having high definition.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 4/12/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has argued that the materials of the reference fail to meet the instant claim limitations as the material comprises carbon black which is shown by the instant examples as not providing a layer having the claimed optical density. As discussed above, the reference teaches that at least one of carbon black, metal oxides, and metals, and does not require that carbon black be present. It would have been obvious to, or alternatively immediately envisaged by one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare the material of the reference choosing metal particles only, thus the rejection is maintained.
